

ITALIANS QUELLING WARFEAR

Nation 'Bending Backward' to Deter Tangle With Yugoslavia as Clouds Sweep Over All Europe.

BELGRADE, Oct. 12.—A menacing wave of anti-Italianism swept Yugoslavia today as 11-year-old King Peter journeyed toward his capital of a nation that has suddenly become the new "powder-keg" of Europe.

The government took desperate measures to hold down the lid and prevent the spark that might precipitate a catastrophe.

ROME, Oct. 12.—Italy was bending over backwards today in a determined effort to avoid a clash with Yugoslavia, which might well provoke a new European conflagration.

Provocation would have to be enormous before Premier Mussolini, now the involuntary custodian of European peace, would even admit it existed, his subordinates hinted.

Rome practically closed its eyes to yesterday's anti-Italian activities in Croatia. Officials minimized the incidents, and they were not reported in the Italian press, under orders from the government.

REPORT BROADENED

"The report that a mob man-handled the Italian consul at Ljubljana is much exaggerated," a high Fascist official, who is important enough to act as the

BASLE, Oct. 12.—French detectives who guarded King Peter of Yugoslavia on his night-long train ride turned him over to the protection of Swiss authorities when the royal special train arrived at the frontier at 9 a. m. today.

The train remained here for an hour while Peter and Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania and Yugoslavia took breakfast. They then proceeded toward Zurich and Vienna.

Duce's spokesman, but who cannot be named because of strict party rules, told International News Service.

"A mob did surround and threaten a consul clerk in the street, but the police performed their duty with great efficiency and saved him before he had been harmed."

"Any other anti-Italian manifestations there may have been are convinced were also promptly handled by the police."

"Nothing has happened of any political or international significance, and we are confident that nothing will. The Italian government is taking no action in regard to yesterday's incidents, because no steps are called for."

This expressed the attitude of Mussolini, who is intensely desirous of maintaining peace, and, if humanly possible, attain the late French Foreign Minister Barthou's dream of friendly relations for all countries encircling Germany.

Mussolini has given ample evidence that he realizes the explosive possibilities of the situation growing out of the Marseilles assassinations, and he has likewise shown that he is going to do everything possible to prevent that explosion.

ITALY NOT AFRAID

When Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria was assassinated, the Duce proved that he was not afraid to take drastic action of a war-like nature if he believed that the situation demanded it.

At present, however, he is so convinced that the moment is most inopportune for sabre-rattling that he is even ready to humble his pride and ignore the anti-Italian demonstrations as long as it is possible for Italy to do that and still retain her national self-respect.

Mussolini, who for the last week has been flaunting the virtues of militarism, has now turned to the theory that "a soft answer turneth away wrath."

The Duce and all his chief subordinates are watching the situation closely, and are kept informed of all developments minute by minute.

They are working, hoping and praying for peace, and if the explosion comes, Mussolini, one of the most militaristic men in Europe, can point with pride to the fact that in this instance he was the apostle of peace.

MARTIN DAVEY, PAUL HERBERT IN "HOT WORDS"

Former Challenged to Sue as Result of Latter's Talk

SPOKE IN AKRON

Charges Kent Man Violated Banking Laws

COLUMBUS, Oct. 12.—A challenge to Martin L. Davey to sue him for libel if his remarks in Akron about financial activities of the Democratic nominee for governor were untrue, was hurled at Davey today by Paul M. Herbert, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor.

"Davey has the effrontery to claim that reports of my address in Akron yesterday are libelous, and threatens that 'proper action will be taken in due course,'" Herbert said in a formal statement.

WELCOME ACTION

"If he means to infer a suit for libel or slander," Herbert continued, "we welcome immediate recourse to the courts. 'Proof of the truth of alleged defamatory statements is a complete defense to such an action.'"

Herbert repeated many of the statements he uttered at Akron and added that "no one knows better than Davey that the statements made in my address are the absolute truth."

"If he has the audacity to sue," the candidate declared, "his deposition, as well as the depositions of officials in charge of the liquidation of the banks will be taken immediately, and the story of his reckless freedom with other peoples money will be written in the courts by sworn testimony."

CITES BANK LAWS

"The banking laws of Ohio do not permit an Ohio bank to loan to any one person or corporation more than 20 per cent of its capital and surplus. The reported capital of the City Bank of Kent was $187,500. Davey himself borrowed from this bank $36,214.02, almost reaching the 20 per cent limit."

"The Davey Investment Company borrowed from the same bank $36,411.33, likewise just shoving the 20 per cent limitation. The Davey Compressor Company borrowed $16,857.20."

"Davey and his companies borrowed a total of $99,482.52, almost 50 per cent of the capital and surplus of the City Bank of Kent."

2 ADMIT PLOT TO ASSASSINATE KING

ANNEMASSE, France, Oct. 12.—Two Yugoslavian emigrants held here as accomplices of Petrus Kalem, assassin of King Alexander, have confessed participation in a murder ring sworn to slay the monarch, it was announced here today.

The announcement was made by M. Stefanovitch, aide to Kosta Potitch, Yugoslavian delegate to the League of Nations who flew here to interrogate the suspects after their arrest.

"The men, who carried forged passports gave their names as Ladislav Benes and Jaroslav Novak. There was some doubt as to their nationality, but it is believed both were born in sections of what is now Yugoslavia."

Kalem was chosen by lot to journey to Marseilles to assassinate the king, Stefanovitch declared the men admitted, but if he had failed other members of the ring would have attempted one after the other until success was attained.

PROVE YOUR ALIBI

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—"Prove your alibi."

This may be New Jersey's legal edict to Bruno Richard Hauptmann when he goes into court here on Monday at a habeas corpus hearing in his "fight to a finish" against extradition to New Jersey to stand trial for the murder of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

Hauptmann's alibi, it is reported, will be that he was playing pinocle at his home in the Bronx, New York City, the night of March 1, 1932, when the baby was kidnapped.

The burden of proving the alibi falls upon Hauptmann, according to New Jersey authorities. Hauptmann may be compelled to take the stand to prove his alibi, they intimated.

SECOND WRECK FATAL TO TRIO

Iowa Scene of Two Train Crashes in 24 Hours; First Killed Four.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 12.—In Iowa's second tragic train wreck within 24 hours, three persons were killed and scores were injured, six critically, as a Rock Island passenger train was derailed six miles east of here today.

The eastbound flyer sideswiped a westbound train on the same line.

The dead were: Mrs. Donald J. Roberts, Des Moines; Sam Mason, negro porter, Chicago.

An unidentified man. A Milwaukee road passenger train yesterday was derailed near Guttenberg, Ia., resulting in four deaths and many injuries.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—One man was killed and four were seriously injured today in an explosion that shook the fourteen story brick warehouse of the Central Cold Storage company.

The victims could not be immediately identified.

OBETZ MAN KILLED BY TOWN MARSHAL

COLUMBUS, Oct. 12.—Wounded when he defied the marshal in the small town of Obetz, near here, Eugene Clark, 38, died in Mercy hospital here today.

Marshall C. M. Hiltger, who declared that he had shot Clark in self-defense, was ordered to appear before Sheriff Ross Anderson to make a report on the killing.

According to Hiltger, he had been called to the Clark home by the slain man's wife, Ethel, after her husband allegedly had threatened to beat her.

When Clark refused to stay out of the house, Hiltger said he was forced to shoot. The marshal alleged that the husband had been drinking.

Officers, Press Ordered to Leave Stoll Estate

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 12.—A youthful suspect in the kidnapping of Mrs. Berry Stoll, prominent Louisville, Kentucky, society matron, was taken into custody by city police here today.

The suspect was rushed immediately to the offices of the police chief here. Authorities who would not reveal his name, admitted, however, that he was a Charleston resident.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 12.—Persistent reports this morning were that the kidnaper of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll "has notified her family a contact will be made today."

Actual meeting of emissaries of the woman's husband, Berry V. Stoll, and of the abductors will take place in downtown Louisville, it was believed.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 12.—The kidnaper of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll will face death in the electric chair or imprisonment for life if captured and convicted.

The extreme penalties are provided by a Kentucky statute enacted in 1928.

Some cash and is the Stoll family's representative in the negotiations, it was reliably learned although Bullitt and the Stolls deny it.

DECOY ATTEMPTED

Withdrawal of police and the press from the Stoll estate appeared today to have been a decoy to hide an actual contact which had been hoped for, but did not materialize, downtown.

The Stoll home was kept brightly lighted and floodlights lit up the grounds all night, making the approach of a kidnaper's envoy out of the question. The lights did focus attention on the house, however, permitting possible negotiations elsewhere with less chance of discovery.

A man from another state was named in the lengthy ransom note as the emissary of the kidnaper, it was learned.

Just how the abductor sent word that a contact would be made today was not divulged. At 1:15 a. m. yesterday a mysterious phone call was received by Berry Stoll, who afterward reported it had been unintelligible.

Bullitt, who usually is not available to telephone callers until mid-morning, answered the phone in person at 6:45 o'clock this morning.

SCHOOL BOY FOUND SLAIN

Body Stuffed Into Trunk In Hobo Section; Was Strangled To Death.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Oct. 12.—Forced into a dilapidated trunk in a corrugated iron shack, the body of seven-year-old John Feeney, Jr., reported missing from his home in Bayonne yesterday, was found today.

The boy, a student at the Woodrow Wilson school three blocks away from the shack, was strangled to death, state police said. The spot where the body was found in Curie's woods, is said by police to be a "jungle" frequented by hoboes, and the shack a hangout for "smoke" addicts and social outcasts.

Identification of the body was made by the child's father John Feeney, a Standard Oil company employee.

Police worked on two theories, one that the boy had been killed by hoboes, the other that he may have been the victim of an innocent game of "cops and robbers" with his playmates in which a make-believe hanging went wrong.

Police questioned a dozen neighborhood boys and two men in connection with the tragedy.

Police Officer Re-instated From Sept. 8 to 15; Will Receive Pay

RESULT OF SESSION

Civil Commission Dismisses Charges, Appeal

Carl K. Radcliff, police officer who was suspended Sept. 8 by Chief W. H. Warner, stood exonerated today of charges brought by the chief. Radcliff was also reinstated by the civil service commission, in session Thursday evening, from Sept. 8 to 15 for which time he will draw $25, weekly salary. The charges of the chief were dismissed; so was Radcliff's appeal.

Immediately after the charges were withdrawn and he was reinstated, Radcliff resigned from the police force.

The procedure was somewhat strange and unexpected. The police chief had charged Radcliff with immoral conduct and neglect of duty. Immediately after the suspension Radcliff reported he would appeal the action, and accordingly filed an appeal on the tenth day after the suspension became effective.

WITNESSES NOT HEARD

A number of witnesses had been called before the civil service commission comprised of W. H. Mason, James McLaughlin and Wade H. Cook but none were interrogated. Radcliff was represented by Emmitt L. Crist and Sterling Lamb. Carl Leist, solicitor, acted as counsel for the commission, while C. A. Leist represented L. T. Shaner, safety director.

After a discussion between the attorneys and the commission it was agreed that the charges would be dismissed and the officer reinstated as of Sept. 8 with the city to pay him for another week's work to Sept. 15. His formal resignation, therefore, dates Sept. 15.

The action gives Radcliff a clean slate as far as the record is concerned.

BEGAN FIRST OF YEAR

The officer served on night duty from the first of the year when Mayor W. B. Cadv and his administration took office. He was appointed at the same time that Alva Shasteen went on the job and Tom McManamy became day desk officer.

No new officer will be added to the force since Radcliff's resignation. Officers Raymond Smith, Fred Fitzpatrick and Shasteen to handle the duties. The condition of the city's treasury makes such action necessary.

2 ESCAPE DEATH

Two Washington C. H. Young men, driving a Ford V-8 truck owned by J.E. Frost, of Washington C. H., narrowly escaped death Thursday when the truck turned over falling off a temporary bridge in Saltcreek-twp.

Names of neither of the men could be learned.

It is reported that one of the men was pinned under the truck in the creek. Had there been more water in the stream he might have drowned. It was necessary to dig him from under the heavy truck.

The truck broke the side of the wooden structure and it was necessary for state highway department employees to make immediate repairs. The truck was badly damaged, but the only injuries its occupants suffered were minor.

They were enroute to Hocking-co for a load of coal.

LUTHERANS HEAR TALKS ON WILLS AND ON INSURANCE

Schmidt Alters Buckeye Eleven

DANVILLE, Ill., Oct. 12.—Thirty-five eight-foot Ohio State University pridders went through a light practice session on the Danville High School field here today, the last of such sessions before they take the field at Champaign tomorrow against the University of Illinois.

8:30 p. m. yesterday and arrived here at 3:30 a. m. today, remaining in the sleeping coaches until after eight a. m.

The practice followed a lecture on the general attack to be followed against Illinois and a routine signal workout directed by Coach Schmidt. The coach indicated before he left Columbus that he was not enthusiastic about Ohio's chances in the game.

RAGGED IN PRACTICE

The Buckeyes continued to look ragged in the final scrimmages on the Ohio State practice field yesterday afternoon. Freshmen equipped with Illinois plays continued to make heavy inroads into varsity territory, as they had done in preceding practices.

Schmidt indicated that several changes might be made in the line and backfield in an effort to plug the holes.

Buzz Wetzel may go in at center, replacing Gomer Jones, with Jim Scott taking Charles Hamrick's tackle post. Inwood Smith may go in at tackle in place of George Neal, and Jack Smith may start in halfback position instead of Franklin Boucher, but the latter change probably will not be permanent, considering Boucher's record of two touchdowns against Indiana.

If Illinois beats Ohio State this year, it will be the first time in four years.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

THE tourists haven't been swarming across the ocean so much the last few weeks, they say. Too much ocean, maybe. Anyhow, there was one maiden lady from Indiana that was on one of the big liners, they tell me, and she didn't know much about the kind of talk they use at sea. But she was going to get her money's worth out of the trip, and she was sort of interviewing the captain. She says to a steward, "Say, I want to talk to the captain. Where'll I find him?"

"He's forward, madame," says the steward. "Well," says the maiden lady, kinda sharp like, "I don't care how forward he is, I'm going to talk to him anyhow! I've handled a lot of forward young men in my time, and if you'll just kindly tell me where to find the captain maybe I won't tell him what you been saying about him!"

OHIO COLLEGE SLATE FILLED BY BIG GAMES

Ohio In West Giving Ohio Schools Chance to Gain Limelight For Day.

By International News Service Ohio college football squads were to begin keeping their heavy gridiron dates today and tomorrow.

The schedule was even top-heavy with so-called "big" games. Gone were the early fall "set-ups." The season was to start in dead earnest.

In the Ohio conference, the inexorable law of elimination was to set to work. Other Buckeye teams journeyed far afield in quest of fame while others played host to out-of-state schools on their home gridirons.

OHIO AT CHAMPAIGN

The Ohio football stage was left to the smaller colleges as Ohio State journeyed to Champaign, Illinois to help the Illini celebrate their home-coming day in one of the biggest intersectional clashes in the country.

Four conflicts were on the program today. Ashland was to invade the Heidelberg campus, Mt. Union was to storm Muskingum at New Concord, Adrian was to meet John Carroll and the Praying Colonels from Centre, of Kentucky were to tackle Xavier at Cincinnati.

Offhand, Heidelberg appeared the favorite over Ashland, the Mounts might upset Muskingum and John Carroll should roll up a victory, but the Centre-Xavier match was in the nature of an issue that won't be decided until the last whistle.

Ohio Conference tilts tomorrow included:

Wooster at Case. Kent State at Bowling Green. Denison at Oberlin. Hiram at Ohio Northern. Marietta at Capital. Wittenberg at Otterbein.

There were many who predicted that the winner of the mythical crown of the conference would emerge from the Wooster-Case clash. The two teams were hailed as the strongest in the loop and here the law of elimination was to exact its toll. Even a tie might damage the ultimate standings of the two teams.

ALL TESTS EVEN

One thing became particularly noticeable. The schedule found the college squads more evenly matched than they have been at any time this season.

Baldwin Wallace, one of the most formidable Ohio conference teams, scheduled Bluffton for its Saturday afternoon's play.

For the first time, too, the invasion of Ohio by distant schools became increasingly apparent. The schedule showed:

Vanderbilt at Cincinnati. Hanover at Miami. Georgetown at Ohio U. Louisville at Toledo.

Vanderbilt, it was recalled, was the Tennessee team that Ohio State trounced 20 to 0 last year. Louisville hails from Kentucky and it tasted blood for the first time in three years in its final game last season, marking up its sole win during that period. Hanover and Georgetown are better known to Ohio fandom.

Other teams of the state crossed the boundary lines. They were: Dayton vs. De Paul at Chicago. Kenyon at Rochester. Western Reserve at Buffalo. Alfred Holbrook at Thiel. Defiance at Earlham. Ohio Wesleyan vs. Marshall at Huntington.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

WHITE IS CAPTAIN

Coach George Gauthier, Ohio Wesleyan's generalissimo, has announced that Howard White, son of T. W. White, S. Court-st. All is captain of the Bishop grid outfit when it takes the field Saturday afternoon against the Marshall college outfit in Huntington, W. Va. — A captain is selected for each game. The contest is the first Buckeye conference fray for both schools. Wesleyan faces the task of stopping John Zontini, gazzle-running Italian, while Marshall must stop White and Turley, the latter a passing threat.

BENYON INJURED

Ohio's game at Champaign, Ill., tomorrow may develop into a passing battle with Stan Pincura, Frank Fisch and Tip Dye heaving them for the Buckeyes and Jack Benyon for the Zuppkeans. A report from the Illinois camp today had it that Benyon, quarterback and co-captain, has a strained shoulder muscle which is bothering him.

University of Chicago has a trick offense it is planning to spring on Michigan Saturday — Chicago is outweighed 15 pounds per man.

ing at his palatial home here. He has not been seen at Berry Stoll's residence since the kidnaping.

AREAS SEARCHED

Scores of rumors that suspicious looking motorists had been seen were "racked" down in all sections of the state. The latest came from Smiths Grove, Ky., 100 miles south of here. Four federal and two local police officers rushed there shortly after midnight. Minute search was continued also in the vicinity of Lake Louisville, 15 miles east of here.

Berry Stoll and his brothers, one of whom is reported to have been threatened with harm in the ra-son note, made it plain they are not interested in prosecution of the kidnaping but only in the safe return of Mrs. Stoll.

"We plead for a message from Mrs. Stoll," a spokesman said last night.

Concern over her fate grew meanwhile as the hours passed. Presumably she was still without medical attention despite that she was ill with a cold and had a temperature of 103 shortly before she was made prisoner. Her captor furthermore dealt her two blows on the head, once cutting a deep gash in her forehead.

Federal investigators were in full charge of the hunt today, assisted by several hundred Louisville police and the state police force. They clamped a rigid censorship over all happenings but admitted very little progress has been made.

Indications a second note was being awaited were given when caretakers at the Stoll place were seen searching the premises closely late yesterday. Two private telephone wires also were laid into the house to facilitate contact with the captor.

HARRODSBURG, Ky., Oct. 12.

Militiamen joined the widespread hunt for kidnaped Mrs. Berry V. Stoll of Louisville today. 50 of them launching a thorough search along the shores of Herrington lake for trace of her.

Twenty-five Kentucky national guardsmen under Brig.-Gen. Ellerbe W. Carter of Louisville, and 25 members of the active state militia under Capt. Storey Harrison of Danville made the search. They arrived quietly late yesterday.

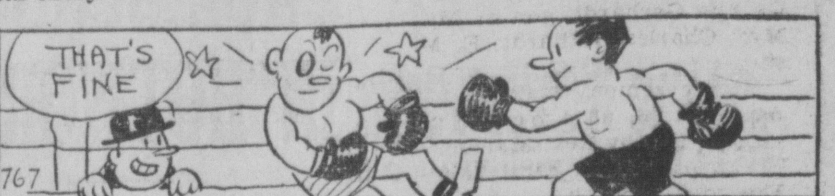

Laughing Around the World

Where Their Paths Would Never Cross

IT IS recorded that up in Duluth an amateur pugilist was induced to fight a visiting professional. In the first round the nose of the local entry was mashed flat.

"How did I do?" said he to his chief second as he made his groggy way back to his corner.

"Immense, kid, immense! You're there!" In the second round the amateur sustained a very black eye and a series of annoying and discomforting punches in his tum-tum. The gong saved him, temporarily, from further punishment.

"Am I still O. K.?" he inquired anxiously of his backer.

"Are you?—I'll say you are. Nothin' like it ever seen in this town. The big stiff can't hurt you. Just keep right after him."

As the bell sounded for the conclusion of the third round, the amateur now hammered almost to a pulp, fell up against the ropes.

"What'll I do next?" he asked, between his puffed and swollen lips.

"Why, just stay right with him same as you've been doing. You've got him goin'."

"Have I?" said the tyro. "Well, then, pull these here gloves off and let him keep on goin'. I'm goin' myself—in the other direction."

Safety Pin Is Old

The safety pin originated thousands of years ago. Among the remains of the lake dwellers of central Europe have been found a great number of pins—some of bone, others of bronze. Many are quite elaborate, with ornamental heads, and others are rudely fashioned. Some have double stems, and few have been found in form exactly like the modern safety pin.

The First Aid station of Pickaway-co Chapter, American Red Cross, was a valuable and much needed asset to the Pumpkin Show is the report of Carl C. Leist, chapter chairman.

The station was under the supervision of Mrs. Eleanor Wolfley Bissell assisted by Misses Mary Butler, Elizabeth Cady, Mabel Young, registered nurses, and Agnes R. Butch, Secretary of Home Service. Thirty-nine persons were treated and a number of children were housed until claimed by relatives and friends. Other minor services were rendered.

First Aid as interpreted by the Red Cross is the practical application of the age-old habit of neighborliness. Accidental injuries have always been incurred by active people and doubtless will always happen, even with the safeguard provided by the Pumpkin Show committee and civil authorities.

In addition to this permanent service there has been close affiliation between the Red Cross and various Federal Emergency Relief activities during the past year. Red Cross chapters gave information as to emergency set-ups and administration; boys and war veterans were enrolled in Civilian Conservation Corps camps and in the ranks of Civil and Public Works forces. First aid was taught by the Red Cross on CWA and PWA projects and is now being taught in CCC camps to lessen accidental deaths and injuries.

Miss Isabelle Witbeck has returned to her home near London after spending a few days with Miss Louise Lockard near this city.

The Daily Miracle

TIME is the most valuable of all human possessions. It outranks love, for love is not permanent. It ebbs after friends are gone and wealth has vanished. Time is priceless because it is changeless. Of all other things one must say: This, too, shall pass away. Time is the only thing that never ceases to be.

The most precious thing in life is the 24 hours which are allotted to mankind each day. Time is the changeless possession. And the more time one has the wealthier one is. And in this, Youth is the wealthiest of all.

Time is the equal possession of mankind. Without time nothing is possible. With it, all things are. Rich man, poor man, beggar man and thief, all are equally blessed by the daily miracle.

Said Emerson, "Give me health, and a day, and I will make the pomp of emperors ridiculous." Said Franklin, "If thou wouldst lay hold on life, save time, for time is the stuff that life is made of."

Arnold Bennett, in his brochure, "How to Live on 24 Hours Per Day," says: "You wake up in the morning and your purse is magically filled with 24 hours of the manufactured tissue of the universe of your life. Waste your infinitely precious commodity as much as you will, and the supply will never be withheld from you. You cannot draw on the future. It is impossible to get into debt. You can only waste the passing moment."

What a singularly inept race we are to have invented the phrase, "killing time." After all that is the real race suicide problem in a nutshell.

From the number of lawyers engaged in the Insull trial, somebody must have some money.

College Income Drops

AMERICAN colleges and universities are feeling the pinch. Many students are financially unable to continue their studies at this time, tuitions and other fees are unpaid, endowments and other gifts are falling off and invested funds are bringing in less income. Yale university's revenue will fall half a million dollars short of the normal expenditures this year, and that school is no exception.

This will compel abandonment of many expansion and building programs and the postponement of costly faculty and curriculum changes. In some institutions it means the students must endure for a few years more dormitory and other facilities no longer considered adequate and suitable. New stadiums and gymnasiums will be a rarity. Faculty members will continue underpaid.

The question arises whether the institutions of higher learning have not been a little too prosperous for the good of the students. Certainly university life can no longer be called the simple or ascetic life once thought so conducive to scholarship. It has little in common with the monastic life lived by the scholars of old. Plain living is said to make strong men. It places a premium on fortitude and emphasizes the lesson that if case is desired, it must be won by hard work.

It would not be accurate to say that the average university student is living in the lap of luxury. Dormitories may be palaces externally and still encompass bare rooms and corridors cold and unadorned. In fact the average student is content with a cell containing a cot, chair and table.

The Insull trial is expected to require four months. Justice seems to be about the only thing in the United States that is slow.

Watch Weight of Young Child

Authority Urges This Precaution as a Preventive of Malnutrition Which, If Neglected, May Menace the Child's Future Health

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

ANEMIA is suspected in those children who are pale and thin and easily fatigued. In a good many cases an iron tonic is prescribed. But as a rule anemia is not the underlying cause. The real nature of the trouble can often be traced to a nutritional disturbance known as "malnutrition."

Malnutrition is a serious disturbance of infants and young children. It is not a disease in the true sense, but is a general term given a state of poor health. This may be the result of chronic infection, faulty diet, incorrect eating habits, poor sleeping habits, lack of rest, insufficient sunshine and fresh air, or a combination of all these negligences.

Malnutrition is more common than most persons realize. It afflicts the country child as well as the city child and is found among the rich as well as the poor. Many chronic disorders of adult life are due to neglect of this disturbance in childhood. Malnutrition should always be suspected in the child who does not eat well, sleep well or gain weight.

The young victim is pale, dull and listless. He has dark rings under his eyes, tires easily and does not care to play with other children. He is backward in growth, height, weight and physical development.

Food does not have much appeal and the child rarely finishes a meal. Every effort should be made to teach these unfortunate children good eating habits.

Diet Important

A daily rest period is often helpful. Preferably this should be taken in the middle of the day. If the child is extremely active it may be necessary to encourage two rest periods during the day.

A good plan is to weigh the child once a week. If there is no improvement in weight and health, it is imperative that every effort be made to determine the underlying cause. Before complete recovery can be expected, all physical defects must be corrected and local infections removed.

Special attention should be given the diet. This should include an adequate amount of milk, fruits, green vegetables, eggs, meat, cereals and bread. Never force a child to eat. Encourage him and if necessary offer a prize as a reward for good eating habits. It is a wise plan in every family to accustom children early in life to a variety of foods.

Allow the baby to learn the flavor and texture of different foods. Of course, it is advisable to start with a small amount and gradually increase it. Do not be discouraged if the young child spits out the first few mouthful of food that is new to him. This is common and should not be taken as a sign that the dislike is permanent.

To prevent malnutrition watch the weight of your child. Even if he means well, take your child to a physician for a full medical examination at least once a year. The child who does not gain weight normally or who shows other disturbances of malnutrition should be examined frequently in order to determine the underlying cause.

Would this condition have any connection with a pain in the ear? 2: What causes cracking of the jaw bone when opening the mouth? 3: What should a girl of 13.5 feet 5 inches tall weigh? "DEATH SONG"

by JOAN CLAYTON and MALCOLM LOGAN

SYNOPSIS

Seifert Vail, the most unpopular patient at exclusive Sherwood Forest Sanatorium, is murdered. Two wounds are found on the body: one apparently from a sharp weapon and the other, from a dull, rusty instrument. Dr. John Calvert and Mark Hillier, playwright and patient, agree the wounds could have been caused by a pair of scissors. Felipa, the maid, discovered the body when she went into Vail's room to turn off the phonograph. Vail, a former opera singer, broken-hearted over the death of his wife, had a habit of repeatedly playing the record "Waiting for You," sung by himself. Dr. Calvert claims Vail had been dead an hour before the phonograph started playing. Vail shared a cottage with Willis Clendening, Milton Cross and James Ruxton. Ruxton's nephew, Loren, and Dr. Calvert are rivals for the affections of Sue Faraday, Mark's nurse. Vail the day before the crime because the former's room had a private entrance and Vail expected a visitor he wanted to receive secretly. A letter the victim received from New York is missing. Sheriff Finn asks Felipa how she knew Vail had been murdered when he had been covered and his wounds were not visible. She appears to be hiding something and, next morning, disappears. Clendening claims he saw a piece of paper under the clock on Felipa's table, but no trace can be found of it. Loren Ruxton claims he was out with Sue at the time of the tragedy and took a snapshot of Lakeside Cottage a little after two o'clock, yet Sue had not left the hospital until five minutes to three. Mark's theory regarding the note in Felipa's room is that Dr. Calvert, having gone there alone, may have found the note but denied seeing it. Learning from the bellboy who delivered the note that it was posted, Mark exclaims, "That's bad!"

CHAPTER XVI

"Consider that combination of circumstances, sheriff," Mark said. His blue eyes were almost blazing with excitement but his voice remained low and level. "Felipa received a note last night, written by someone who took pains to disguise his handwriting. Some time during the night she disappeared. She had been hiding something from you yesterday, which indicates that she knew or suspected the identity of the murderer and didn't want to reveal it. That note which she received must have been written by the person she suspected. If the author was being protected by her through friendship, doesn't it seem probable that he was attempting to arrange to see her secretly?"

Finn had risen to his feet. For once he forgot to pull his mustache. He looked actually frightened.

"What are you getting at?" he asked in a husky voice.

"Just this," said Mark. "Felipa may have run away, but there's another possible explanation of her disappearance. If she knew too much, she may have been murdered too."

"I felt the hair at the back of my neck rising. Finn swallowed painfully. "I keep thinking of that lake in back of the cottage," Mark said. "If she started to run away, she probably went along that path beside it, through the woods." He looked intently at us. "Mr. Finn," he added, "I'd look along that path and around that lake very carefully, if I were you. If Felipa isn't found soon, I'd drag the lake."

Finn tried to laugh and failed miserably. "Heck, Mr. Hillier," he said, "the girl just ran away. Judas Priest, don't try to make things any worse than they are already!"

He walked to the door.

"After all, you're the sheriff," Mark said, "but I repeat, you'd better look around that lake."

"I ain't going to do any such thing!" Finn replied angrily. He pulled the door open with a vicious yank, and left us.

I stayed in Mark's room only a few minutes after Finn had left. Disturbed by the developments of the morning, confused by all the theories that had sprung from Mark's too fertile brain, I wanted to get away by myself and think. The murder of Seifert Vail had been bewildering enough yesterday, with half a dozen significant facts which seemed to bear no relation to each other. Now, with Felipa, Loren Ruxton and Dr. Calvert all under suspicion, it seemed a hopeless problem. I went to my room and walked up and down, smoking cigarettes, trying to find some order and relationship in that confusion, and failing.

Most disquieting of all was Mark's certainty that Felipa had been murdered, that her body was in that still, deep lake less than a hundred yards from the room in which Vail had been stabbed to death. My mind kept returning to it, and I could not persuade myself that it was all a product of Mark's melodramatic imagination. He had sensed the tragedy at Lakeside cottage when Vail's phonograph had stopped playing, and I could not escape the fear that this other intuition of his was correct.

Without knowing what I hoped to accomplish, driven only by vague apprehensions, I left my room and entered the woods behind the sanatorium by a narrow path that led from the rear of the main building. In a few minutes I could see nothing but trees and thick underbrush on either side of me. I might have been miles from any habitation. It was very silent; not even a bird sang.

Hurrying, I came suddenly upon the shore of the lake. Even with the sun high, the water near the shores was shadowed by dark firs and balsams. The patch of brightness where the sunlight gleamed on the center of the lake only made the rest of it appear more gloomy. I could feel a chill rising from the water as I continued around the southern end of the lake, the end nearest Lakeside Cottage. The woods were thinner here, and I could catch glimpses of the cottage through the trees.

When the path turned sharply north, at the east end of the lake, I walked more slowly, my eyes on the ground. It was here that Felipa walked, if she went that way last night. I was examining the beaten earth so closely that, as the path took a turn, I almost ran into three men standing in the footway—the sheriff, one of his deputies and Dr. Calvert.

"Hello," I said. "Nice morning, isn't it?"

The sheriff grunted. Calvert said, "Good morning, Mr. Fowler. Taking a walk?"

I nodded. It was difficult for me to look at the young doctor; I was afraid that I would betray my suspicions.

"Are you in your way, Mr. Fowler?" Finn asked.

"Oh, no. I was just walking around."

"Don't let us stop you," he said.

"Look here, Mr. Finn," I answered, "you know perfectly well why I'm here, and I know why you're here. After all, it was Mark Hillier who suggested looking along the path, and I'm only trying to help both of you."

The sheriff's face reddened. I noticed that the deputy looked quizzically at him, and I realized that he must have appropriated Mark's suggestion without giving him credit for it.

"There's too many amateur detectives around here," he said. "When I want your advice, or Mr. Hillier's, I'll ask for it."

"Very well," I said. "Will you let me pass?"

The three men stepped silently aside and I walked by them. I was angry and humiliated, and I decided at that moment to have nothing further to do with the inquiry into Vail's murder. If Mark wanted to be a detective he could be; but I wouldn't be dragged into his plans any more.

A blue jay in the path in front of me shrieked suddenly and took wing. I cry started me out of my suspicion, and I glanced at the spot from which it had flown. My heart began to hammer. At my feet were two large blue beads. I turned and ran back, calling, "Sheriff! Sheriff!"

"What is it?" Finn called, hurrying toward me.

"Felipa's beads!" I cried.

He was on the ground in a minute, picking up the beads in his thick fingers.

"How do you know they're hers?" he said.

I felt suddenly ridiculous. I did not know they were Felipa's; the association had been automatic, because I had been looking for some trace of her. Dr. Calvert's tired voice behind me said:

"She had a necklace like that. I've seen it."

The sheriff turned, holding the beads in his cupped hand. He looked very grim.

"Listen, Simpson," he said to his deputy. "You go back to town in my car and get the grappling hook that's in my garage. Bring it here as fast as you can."

"You going to drag the lake?" Simpson asked incredulously.

"What do you think I'm going to do with a grappling hook? Comb my hair with it?"

"Why, chief, you can't drag that lake. That lake ain't got no bottom—everybody knows that."

"You get that hook or I'll break your neck!" Finn roared.

"Okay, chief, okay," Simpson said placatingly. He backed away and the sheriff, turning abruptly, plunged through the brush and aimed toward the lake. The doctor and I, after a momentary hesitation, followed him. In a minute we stood at the edge of the lake, looking into the water at the dark rock bottom which shelved off sharply a few feet from shore. The sheriff began to walk slowly along the shore, scrambling over rocks and roots of trees.

"Say, what's that?" he cried suddenly. He turned and caught Dr. Calvert's arm. The physician winced.

"No need to break my arm," he said, pulling away.

"Sorry, doc, but look down there!" I followed Finn's pointing arm. On a ledge five feet from shore, just before the rock dropped away to nothingness, was a dark, shapeless bundle.

"It looks—" Dr. Calvert did not finish the sentence. He looked at the sheriff with dismay in his eyes.

Finn began to run along the shore, panting and stumbling. A grabber was pulled up on the gravel at one end, and the sheriff stopped there and came hurrying back with a long boat hook in his hand. The bundle moved slightly as he touched it with the pole.

We twisted the pole until the hook in the end caught. Then he bent his back and lifted, with all his strength. The dark mass came up slowly, and as it came out of the water, diminished in size. I realized then that the refraction of the light had magnified it, and I almost laughed with relief. Out of the water, it was no more than three feet long.

The sheriff deposited it on the bank and he and the doctor knelt and began to examine it. It appeared to be a khaki garment of some sort, bundled up and tied by the sleeves. Under the sheriff's hands it came apart. He gave a sharp exclamation as he unfolded it.

The bundle was a pair of khaki overalls, and inside it was a pair of hedge shears. Where they had rested against the cloth, there was a dark sticky stain. Dr. Calvert's hand darted toward the shears. He picked them up and felt the edges of the blades.

"Mr. Finn," he said solemnly, "I believe you've found the weapon that Vail was killed with."

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Construction of Grade Crossings to Replace CWA President Plan?

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt has under serious consideration a nationwide program for railroad grade-crossings as a 1934 substitute for last winter's CWA.

Cost of the vast project is tentatively estimated at $1,000,000,000. Seventy-five per cent of the money, it is figured, would go direct to the pocket of labor.

Besides the controlling factor of approaching reducing unemployment rolls, the grade-crossing program appeals to the President for several other reasons:

First, he feels that the widespread installation of such safeguards have long been urgently needed in American railroad transportation.

Second, such a plan would eliminate the criticism raised against the CWA that no constructive work was accomplished.

Under the plan, as being considered by the President, the railroads would bear half the cost, with the Government lending the money.

In other words, the Government would put up the estimated $1,000,000,000 necessary to finance the great project. But the railroads, over a term of years, would repay $500,000,000.

Unshaken

Texas' gentle, hard-working Senator Morris Sheppard, author of the late 18th Amendment, really believes that some day the United States will return to national prohibition.

In fact Sheppard always has a little anecdote on the tip of his tongue to drive home his conviction. This is his latest:

A teacher called on one of her pupils for a sentence containing the word "diadem."

"People who drink moonshine," the lad promptly rattled off, "die a damn sight quicker than those who don't."

Legion Convention

Administration leaders have been privately advised that the American Legion will do the following at its Miami convention:

1. Elect as National Commander, Frank N. Belgrano, Jr., San Francisco banker and Republican.

2. Side-step a declaration in favor of immediate payment of the bonus.

While the inside word is one of assurance to the Administration regarding the final outcome on the bonus issue, it is admitted that there will be sharp fighting over the question on the convention.

Marian Martin Pattern

Complete, Diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart PATTERN 9174

This chic dress will be smart as an under-the-coat frock throughout the winter. The long panels, back and front, give that slim, full look to their wearers and any suggestion of severity of line is done away with by the prettily feminine collar, gathered softly about the throat and the two rickety little bows at the neck. The sleeves, wide at the wrist, are fashionably comfortable, or if you prefer to have them puffed this can be done very simply by inserting elastic at the wrist. Have you seen the new corrugated crape of an Indian rust shade? It would be the perfect choice for this modish pattern.

Pattern 9174 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 4 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for EACH MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern.

THE FALL AND WINTER ISSUE of the MARIAN MARTIN PATTERN BOOK is now off the press. It is big fashion news and delightful reading... filled with stunning and easy-to-make patterns for street and house dresses, blouses, skirts, lingerie, sports clothes... all the essentials of a smart outfit for matron, maiden or little child. PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

Send your order to The Herald Pattern Department, 124 W. Main-st., Circleville, O.

Regains Top in Films

William Fox

A U. S. supreme court ruling has catapulted William Fox, above, former movie mogul back to the top of filmland, from which he was asserted ousted by Wall Street financiers in 1931. The highest bench declared valid the patents of a German talkie system, which film companies had been using free for nine years. Fox owns 90 per cent of the stock in the device.

Bonusseers will go into the battle with a pledged strength of 38 1-2 per cent of the convention vote. Fifteen state delegations have been directed to cast their ballot for some form of bonus-payment action.

These "departments" are Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Texas, Washington, and the District of Columbia.

Despite this imposing bloc of bonus votes, however, the masterminds of the vet organization—who behind the scenes really run its affairs—are convinced they can stop a formal endorsement.

They believe the majority of the rank and file can be persuaded that it is against their interest to take such a stand at this time, that it would antagonize public sentiment, endanger the benefits for disabled veterans regained during the last session of Congress.

White House Laugh

Best recent laugh in a White House press conference:

Newsmen: "Mr. President, are you taking any personal hand in the bombing of Japs in Arizona?"

New Conscience

Henry Morgenthau's Internal Revenue Collectors are growing too conscientious for the comfort of Congressmen. They are throwing out income tax returns in which Congressmen claim exemption for traveling expenses at the full rate of ten cents a mile.

Ten cents is the basis on which members are paid. But, the Collectors point out, ten cents is not the actual cost. It is about three times the actual cost. They will allow only the exact railroad fare to and from Washington plus one lower berth.

This is hard on Congressmen. For years they have deducted for members of the family, for clerks, for "Government business," for extra trips to and from the Capital. Traveling expenses of a majority of members run above their allowance, according to the sergeant-at-arms. Yet if the total allowance

Merry-Go-Round

Comptroller General McCall's slashing of the initial budget for the President's tree belt from $15,000,000 to $1,000,000 has not halted the plan. The United States Forest Service, in charge of the work, has opened field headquarters at Lincoln, Neb., and started working. It anticipates appropriation of the necessary funds when Congress convenes. Colonel Horatio B. Hackett, housing chief of PWA, was a famous football star in his youth—West Point's ace halfback in 1903. Hackett has kept up his interest in football, umpires many big games. The Securities Exchange Commission is passing up no bets in keeping its eye on the boys in Wall Street. It has ordered installed in its offices the same Stock Exchange tickers used in brokerage offices. General Hugh Johnson's forthcoming book will not be entirely about the NRA. A portion of it will be devoted to his military career, particularly that part of it relating to the World War. Jim Reed once persuaded Bennett Clark to run for the Senate, now is silent regarding support for him. Meanwhile, however, Clark has captured a good part of the old Red machine in Missouri. AT THE GRAND

Nine different countries are represented in the picturization of "Embarrassing Moments" starring Chester Morris, at the Grand Theatre.

Alan Mowbray, playing opposite Morris, was born in London. Francisco Alonzo, brother of Gilbert Roland, comes from Madrid, George E. Stone hails from Poland, Charles Stumar, head cameraman, was born in Hungary. Fred Hueston, doing a bit, is from Canada. Velma Wayne, who does a Spanish dance, was born in Australia, and two extra girls are products of Berlin. Henry Armetta, of course, comes from Sunny Italy.

Morris himself, Marion Nixon and Walter Woolf, playing the leads in the picture, are all products of America, as are Lois January, John Wray, Virginia Sale, and many others.

Church Urges Members To Attend Next Sunday

The Spiritual Advance program and Loyalty campaign, which is being carried on by all Presbyterian churches in America in an effort to bring back the church members who have not been attending regularly and to enlist forces to enlarge the present membership, will expect substantial support from the members of the local Presbyterian church.

Every effort is being made by the chairman of the various groups to see that all members, who are physically able, will be present Sunday morning, Oct. 14, at 10:15 at the local Presbyterian church to attend roll call and communion service. All personal dislikes should be forgotten, cast aside your pleasure jaunts, forget for a period any financial obligations (nobody knows that but you and the treasurer) and be in your place Sunday morning when the "roll is called up yonder" at the Presbyterian church. This is not a drive for funds, but it is a drive for men and women, who can learn to say "my church" and mean it, if it need be the cost of time and effort.

Say it bravely in the face of an increasing tendency to use the Lord's day for personal pleasure. Say it because you are indebted to the church for Christianity that safe-guards our civilization. Speak of the church as your best friend for life and eternity.

Learn to keep your Sundays for the Great thing of the Soul.

Come to church for your children's sake, for your Country's sake.

For your own sake come to church. You need the church and the church needs you.

Loyalty is the Golden Key to the greatest church success, if the members of a church are not loyal, its doors soon close. What are you doing to keep the doors open?

BANDITS FLEE SOUTH

Pretty Boy Floyd Positively Identified; Officers Say Baby Face Nelson Also Along as Three Men Battle Officers and Escape.

McINTYRE, Ia., Oct. 12.—Federal officers and police of two states today pressed a grim man hunt for Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd and George "Baby Face" Nelson, foremost of the nation's desperadoes, who with a companion escaped in a running gun battle with officers near here.

Fleeing southward in a Ford V-8 bearing the Iowa license number 41-875, the trio of outlaws were last reported at Princeton, Mo., with Floyd at the wheel. Witnesses said the back of the automobile was punctured with bullets.

Missouri authorities promptly joined in the search, Floyd was believed to be heading for the Oklahoma bad lands where he made his name as a killer and bank robber extraordinary.

EXCHANGED VOLLEYS
Sheriff William Owen and State Agent A. G. Haight, with whom the three desperadoes exchanged volleys of machine gun and pistol fire near here, said they were positive of Floyd's identity. They expressed belief that one of his companions was "Baby Face" Nelson, former machine gunner of the John Dillinger gang and America's Public Enemy No. 1.

Federal officers arrived here immediately after the shooting affray to take charge of the investigation and squads of armed deputy sheriffs and volunteers hunted highways, roads and farms for a trace of the gunmen, who had fled southward.

Informed by a neighboring farmer that Floyd was hiding out at a farm house a mile south of here, Sheriff Owen and Officer Haight went to investigate. Floyd saw them approaching. Paying no attention to their commands to halt he raced to an automobile, summoning two other men from a field where they were husking corn.

Floyd piloted the car out onto the road with the other two fugitives firing machine guns at the two officers, who ducked for cover. Still firing, the gunmen sped away on the highway.

The officers gave chase in their automobile. Two miles west of the farm, on rounding a curve, the sheriff and Haight found that the bandits had halted their car and turned around. In the face of pistol fire from the police car the gunmen roared past, raking the officers' car with machine gun fire and disappeared over the road they had come.

NONE INJURED
Although Haight's automobile was punctured by several bullets neither was injured.

HAUPTMANN'S LAWYER ASKS TO HALT CASE

To Attack Mountaineer Who Identified Alien; New Witness Found by State.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—With only three days remaining until Monday when a hearing will be held on Bruno Richard Hauptmann's plea to escape extradition to New Jersey to stand trial for the murder of the infant son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh his counsel, James A. Fawcett, was busy today marshalling every scrap of evidence favorable to the cause of the Bronx carpenter.

Fawcett has already announced that Hauptmann's defense will be an alibi and from one source today comes the report he will contend that on the night the Lindbergh infant was stolen from its crib in Hopewell, N. J., the somber-faced alien was in the Bronx—playing pinocle.

Fawcett has a large detail of private detectives working to bolster his defense and indications were that every so-called telling point in the prosecution's case against Hauptmann would be vigorously contested.

TO ASSAIL WITNESS
In New Jersey, for example, it is understood Fawcett is preparing to blast the props from under the state's star witness—the man on whose testimony it is believed the prosecution is depending to prove that Hauptmann was in

Hopewell in or about the time of the kidnapping.

This witness, it is said, is Milard White, Sourland mountain logger who told police that on two occasions during the month before the crime he saw a man resembling Hauptmann in the woods near the Lindbergh estate.

An affidavit in which White's credibility as a witness is assailed is now in the hands of the defense attorney, it was reported.

The man who signed the affidavit, it is stated, is Theodore Arnold, a Hopewell truckman, who declares he has known the mountaineer for more than 20 years.

Meanwhile a new figure entered the case in the person of Frank Rossiter of Maplewood, N. J., a theatrical booking agent with offices on Fifth Avenue, New York. He may appear with other state witnesses in the Bronx on Monday at the habeas corpus hearing.

Rossiter, it was learned, is prepared to testify that he talked with Hauptmann for approximately 10 minutes in a well-lighted place near Sourland mountain. Rossiter revealed that he had not known Hauptmann by name, but had identified him positively from pictures.

Admission that Rossiter would be one of the most important witnesses for the prosecution came from Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police.

Williams Is Veteran of NRA

An NRA three-letter man is S. Clay Williams, tobacco tycoon and newly appointed chairman of the reorganized NRA administrative board. Since 1933, when President Roosevelt selected the tall North Carolina lawyer to serve on the national labor board, Williams has been in the midst of the New Deal business and labor cooperative setups. For a long time he was spokesman of the tobacco industry code authority, which still is locking horns with the government over a final approved draft. Afterward Williams served on the NRA advisory board, and then on the 13-man committee to study the shortening of workers' hours.

ITALIANS QUELLING WARFEAR

Nation 'Bending Backward' to Deter Tangle With Yugoslavia as Clouds Sweep Over All Europe.

BELGRADE, Oct. 12.—A menacing wave of anti-Italianism swept Yugoslavia today as 11-year-old King Peter journeyed toward his capital of a nation that has suddenly become the new "powder-keg" of Europe.

The government took desperate measures to hold down the lid and prevent the spark that might precipitate a catastrophe.

ROME, Oct. 12.—Italy was bending over backwards today in a determined effort to avoid a clash with Yugoslavia, which might well provoke a new European conflagration.

Provocation would have to be enormous before Premier Mussolini, now the involuntary custodian of European peace, would even admit it existed, his subordinates hinted.

Rome practically closed its eyes to yesterday's anti-Italian activities in Croatia. Officials minimized the incidents, and they were not reported in the Italian press, under orders from the government.

REPORT BROADENED
"The report that a mob man-handled the Italian consul at Ljubljana is much exaggerated," a high Fascist official, who is important enough to act as the

BASLE, Oct. 12.—French detectives who guarded King Peter of Yugoslavia on his night-long train ride turned him over to the protection of Swiss authorities when the royal special train arrived at the frontier at 9 a. m. today.

The train remained here for an hour while Peter and Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania and Yugoslavia took breakfast. They then proceeded toward Zurich and Vienna.

Duce's spokesman, but who cannot be named because of strict party rules, told International News Service.

"A mob did surround and threaten a consul clerk in the street, but the police performed their duty with great efficiency and saved him before he had been harmed."

"Any other anti-Italian manifestations there may have been were also promptly handled by the police."

"Nothing has happened of any political or international significance, and we are confident that nothing will. The Italian government is taking no action in regard to yesterday's incidents, because no steps are called for."

This expressed the attitude of Mussolini, who is intensely desirous of maintaining peace, and, if humanly possible, attain the late French Foreign Minister Barthou's dream of friendly relations for all countries embracing Germany.

Mussolini has given ample evidence that he realizes the explosive possibilities of the situation growing out of the Marseilles assassinations, and he has likewise shown that he is going to do everything possible to prevent that explosion.

ITALY NOT AFRAID
When Chancellor Dollfus of Austria was assassinated, the Duce proved that he was not afraid to take drastic action of a war-like nature if he believed that the situation demanded it.

At present, however, he is so convinced that the moment is most inopportune for sabre-rattling that he is even ready to humble his pride and ignore the anti-Italian demonstrations as long as it is possible for Italy to do that and still retain her national self-respect.

Mussolini, who for the last week has been flaunting the virtues of militarism, has now turned to the theory that "a soft answer turneth away wrath."

The Duce and all his chief subordinates are watching the situation closely, and are kept informed of all developments minute by minute.

They are working, hoping and praying for peace, and if the explosion comes, Mussolini, one of the most militaristic men in Europe, can point with pride to the fact that in this instance he was the apostle of peace.

MARTIN DAVEY, PAUL HERBERT IN "HOT WORDS"

Former Challenged to Sue as Result of Latter's Talk

SPOKE IN AKRON

Charges Kent Man Violated Banking Laws

COLUMBUS, Oct. 12.—A challenge to Martin L. Davey to sue him for libel if his remarks in Akron about financial activities of the Democratic nominee for governor were untrue, was hurled at Davey today by Paul M. Herbert, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor.

"Davey has the effrontery to claim that reports of my address in Akron yesterday are libelous, and threatens that 'proper action' will be taken in due course," Herbert said in a formal statement.

WELCOME ACTION
"If he means to infer a suit for libel or slander," Herbert continued, "we welcome immediate recourse to the courts. 'Proof of the truth of alleged defamatory statements is a complete defense to such an action.'"

Herbert repeated many of the statements he uttered at Akron and added that "no one knows better than Davey that the statements made in my address are the absolute truth."

"If he has the audacity to sue," the candidate declared, "his deposition as well as the depositions of officials in charge of the liquidation of the banks will be taken immediately, and the story of his reckless freedom with other peoples' money will be written in the courts by sworn testimony."

CITES BANK LAWS

"The banking laws of Ohio do not permit an Ohio bank to loan to any one person or corporation more than 20 per cent of its capital and surplus. The reported capital of the City Bank of Kent was $187,500. Davey himself borrowed from this bank $36,214.02, almost reaching the 20 per cent limit."

"The Davey Investment Company borrowed from the same bank $36,411.33, likewise just shoving the 20 per cent limitation. The Davey Compressor Company borrowed $16,857.20."

"Davey and his companies borrowed a total of $89,482.52, almost 50 per cent of the capital and surplus of the City Bank of Kent."

2 ADMIT PLOT TO ASSASSINATE KING

ANNEMASSE, France, Oct. 12.—Two Yugoslavian emigres held here as accomplices of Petrus Kalem, assassin of King Alexander, have confessed participation in a murder ring sworn to slay the monarch, it was announced here today.

The announcement was made by M. Stefanovitch, aide to Kosta Potitch, Yugoslavian delegate to the League of Nations who flew here to interrogate the suspects after their arrest.

"The men, who carried forged passports, gave their names as Ladislav Benes and Jaroslav Novak. There was some doubt as to their nationality, but it is believed both were born in sections of what is now Yugoslavia."

Kalem was chosen by lot to journey to Marseilles to assassinate the king. Stefanovitch declared the men admitted, but if he had failed other members of the ring would have attempted one after the other until success was attained.

PROVE YOUR ALIBI

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—"Prove your alibi."

This may be New Jersey's legal edict to Bruno Richard Hauptmann when he goes into court here on Monday at a habeas corpus hearing in his "fight to a finish" against extradition to New Jersey to stand trial for the murder of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

Hauptmann's alibi, it is reported, will be that he was playing pinochle at his home in the Bronx, New York City, the night of March 1, 1932, when the baby was kidnapped.

The burden of proving the alibi falls upon Hauptmann, according to New Jersey authorities. Hauptmann may be compelled to take the stand to prove his alibi, they intimated.

HOSKINS TO PROBE OTTO'S VOUCHERS

COLUMBUS, Oct. 12.—County Prosecutor Donald J. Hoskins announced today that the grand jury will probe the case of City Auditor Walter E. Otto, who was accused in a hearing by city council of drawing expense vouchers for trips that were never taken.

According to Hoskins, the jury will begin its deliberations next Monday. Various city officials, including Mayor Henry Worley, were named on some of the expense vouchers, it was claimed, but they denied they had taken any trips at the city's expense.

A dispatch from Peking, China, said they were seized near Lochnang in Kweichow Province. Miss Emblen, a British subject, gave her United States residence as Champaign, Ill. She left for China with the Inland Missions.

SECOND WRECK FATAL TO TRIO

Iowa Scene of Two Train Crashes in 24 Hours; First Killed Four.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 12.—In Iowa's second tragic train wreck within 24 hours, three persons were killed and scores were injured, six critically, as a Rock Island passenger train was derailed six miles east of here today.

The eastbound flyer sideswiped a westbound train on the same line.

The dead were: Mrs. Donald J. Roberts, Des Moines.

Sam Mason, negro porter, Chicago.

An unidentified man.

A Milwaukee road passenger train yesterday was derailed near Guttenberg, Ia., resulting in four deaths and many injuries.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—One man was killed and four were seriously injured today in an explosion that shook the fourteen story brick warehouse of the Central Cold Storage company.

Windows as far as seven blocks away were shattered.

No fire followed the explosion, but dense clouds of ammonia fumes filled the lower floors and firemen had to don gas masks to enter the basement in search of other possible victims.

The victims could not be immediately identified.

OBETZ MAN KILLED BY TOWN MARSHAL

COLUMBUS, Oct. 12.—Wounded when he defied the marshal in the small town of Obetz, near here, Eugene Clark, 38, died in Mercy hospital here today.

Marshall C. M. Hiltger, who declared that he had shot Clark in self-defense, was ordered to appear before Sheriff Ross Anderson to make a report on the killing.

According to Hiltger, he had been called to the Clark home by the slain man's wife, Ethel, after her husband allegedly had threatened to beat her.

When Clark refused to stay out of the house, Hiltger said he was forced to shoot. The marshal alleged that the husband had been drinking.

TRIO TRAPPED?

MEXICO, Mo., Oct. 12.—Three men, one of whom is believed to be Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, were reported surrounded in a farm field five miles south of here.

Local authorities were reported to have surrounded the men and awaiting reinforcements from Missouri state highway patrolmen and sheriff's officers.

2 Negroes Executed

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Charming strains of "Goin' to Heaven on a Missouri Mule" instead of psalms, two negroes were executed early today in the Cook county jail.

Officers, Press Ordered to Leave Stoll Estate

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 12.—A youthful suspect in the kidnapping of Mrs. Berry Stoll, prominent Louisville, Kentucky, society matron, was taken into custody by city police here today.

The suspect was rushed immediately to the offices of the police chief here. Authorities who would not reveal his name, admitted, however, that he was a Charleston resident.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 12.—Persistent reports this morning were that the kidnaper of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll has notified her family a contact will be made today.

Actual meeting of emissaries of the woman's husband, Berry V. Stoll, and of the abductors will take place in downtown Louisville, it was believed.

William Marshall Bullitt, prominent attorney, has the $50,000 ran-

some cash and is the Stoll family's representative in the negotiations, it was reliably learned although Bullitt and the Stolls deny it.

DECOY ATTEMPTED

Withdrawal of police and the press from the Stoll estate appeared today to have been a decoy to hide an actual contact which had been hoped for, but did not materialize, downtown.

The Stoll home was kept brightly lighted and floodlights lit up the grounds all night, making the approach of a kidnaper's envoy out of the question. The lights did focus attention on the house, however, permitting possible negotiations elsewhere with less chance of discovery.

A man from another state was named in the lengthy ransom note as the emissary of the kidnaper, it was learned.

Just that a contact would be made today was not divulged. At 1:15 a. m. yesterday a mysterious phone call was received by Berry Stoll, who afterward reported it had been unintelligible.

Bullitt, who usually is not available to telephone callers until mid-morning, answered the phone in person at 6:45 o'clock this morning.

The Rotary club took an important step toward the safety of Circleville's school children, Thursday, by agreeing to finance the purchase of equipment necessary to establish safety patrols at the various schools.

The action followed a talk by Mrs. Rose Graham, of the governor's safety commission.

The club also heard talks by Tom O. Gilliland, who explained the new passing plan, and by Lawrence Coeller, who was optimistic of business prospects for the future.

SCHOOL BOY FOUND SLAIN

Body Stuffed Into Trunk In Hobo Section; Was Strangled To Death.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Oct. 12.—Forced into a dilapidated trunk in a corrugated iron shack, the body of seven-year-old John Feeney, Jr., reported missing from his home in Bayonne yesterday, was found today.

The boy, a student at the Woodrow Wilson school three blocks away from the shack, was strangled to death, state police said. The spot where the body was found in Curie's woods, is said by police to be a "jungle" frequented by hoboes, and the shack a hangout for "smoke" addicts and social outcasts.

Identification of the body was made by the child's father, John Feeney, a Standard Oil company employee.

Police worked on two theories, one that the boy had been killed by hoboes, the other that he may have been the victim of an ancient game of "cops and robbers" with his playmates in which a make-believe hanging went wrong.

Police questioned a dozen neighborhood boys and two men in connection with the tragedy.

BROWNING IS DEAD

SCARSDALE, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Edward W. Browning, picturesque real estate operator, died today in his home here.

Browning, who won the nickname of "Daddy," due to his interest in young people, was the principal in the famous "Peaches" divorce trial and other court actions.

He was 60 years of age. He had been under a physician's care since June 23.

Police Officer Re-instated From Sept. 8 to 15; Will Receive Pay

RESULT OF SESSION

Civil Commission Dismisses Charges, Appeal

Carl K. Radcliff, police officer who was suspended Sept. 8 by Chief W. H. Warner, stood exonerated today of charges brought by the chief. Radcliff was also re-instated by the civil service commission, in session Thursday evening, from Sept. 8 to 15 for which time he will draw $25, weekly salary. The charges of the chief were dismissed; so was Radcliff's appeal.

Immediately after the charges were withdrawn and he was re-instated, Radcliff resigned from the police force.

The procedure was somewhat strange and unexpected. The police chief had charged Radcliff with immoral conduct and neglect of duty. Immediately after the suspension Radcliff reported he would appeal the action, and accordingly filed an appeal on the tenth day after the suspension became effective.

WITNESSES NOT HEARD
A number of witnesses had been called before the civil service commission comprised of W. H. Mason, James McLaughlin and Wade H. Cook but none were interrogated. Radcliff was represented by Emmitt L. Crist and Sterling Lamb. Carl Leist, solicitor, acted as counsel for the commission, while C. A. Leist represented L. T. Shaner, safety director.

After a discussion between the attorneys and the commission it was agreed that the charges would be dismissed after the officer re-instated as of Sept. 8 with the city to pay him for another week's work to Sept. 15. His formal resignation, therefore, dates Sept. 15.

The action gives Radcliff a clean slate as far as the record is concerned.

BEGAN FIRST OF YEAR

The officer served on night duty from the first of the year when Mayor W. B. Cadv and his administration took office. He was appointed at the same time that Alva Shasteen went on the job and Tom McManamy became day desk officer.

No new officer will be added to the force since Radcliff's resignation. Officers Raymond Smith, Fred Fitzpatrick and Shasteen to handle the duties. The condition of the city's treasury makes such action necessary.

2 ESCAPE DEATH

Two Washington C. H. Young men, driving a Ford V-8 truck owned by J. E. Frost, of Washington C. H., narrowly escaped death, Thursday when the truck turned over falling off a temporary bridge in Salt Creek twp.

Names of neither of the men could be learned.

It is reported that one of the men was pinned under the truck in the creek. Had there been more water in the stream he might have drowned. It was necessary to dig him from under the heavy truck.

The truck broke the side of the wooden structure and it was necessary for state highway department employees to make immediate repairs. The truck was badly damaged, but the only injuries its occupants suffered were minor.

They were enroute to Hocking-co for a load of coal.

Schmidt Alters Buckeye Eleven

DANVILLE, Ill., Oct. 12—Thirty-five St. Louis Cardinals today made a light practice session on the Danville High School field here today, the last of such sessions before they take the field at Champaign tomorrow against the University of Illinois.

8:30 p. m. yesterday and arrived here at 3:30 a. m. today, remaining in the sleeping coaches until after eight a. m.

The practice followed a lecture on the general attack to be followed against Illinois and a routine signal workout directed by Coach Schmidt. The coach indicated before he left Columbus that he was not enthusiastic about Ohio's chances in the game.

RAGGED IN PRACTICE

The Buckeyes continued to look ragged in the final scrimmage on the Ohio State practice field yesterday afternoon. Freshmen equipped with Illinois plays continued to make heavy inroads into varsity territory, as they had done in preceding practices.

Schmidt indicated that several changes might be made in the line and backfield in an effort to plug the holes.

Buzz Wetzel may go in at center, replacing Gomer Jones, with Jim Scott taking Charles Hamrick's tackle post. Inwood Smith may go in at tackle in place of George Neal, and Jack Smith may start in halfback position instead of Franklin Boucher, but the latter change probably will not be permanent, considering Boucher's record of two touchdowns against Indiana.

If Illinois beats Ohio State this year, it will be the first time in four years.

OHIO COLLEGE SLATE FILLED BY BIG GAMES

Ohio is West Giving Ohio Schools Chance to Gain Limelight For Day.

By International News Service

Ohio college football squads were to begin keeping their heavy gridiron dates today and tomorrow.

The schedule was even top-heavy with so-called "big" games. Gone were the early fall "set-ups." The season was to start in dead earnest.

In the Ohio conference, the inexorable law of elimination was to set to work. Other Buckeye teams journeyed far afield in quest of fame while others played host to out-of-state schools on their home gridirons.

OHIO AT CHAMPAIGN

The Ohio football stage was left to the smaller colleges as Ohio State journeyed to Champaign, Illinois to help the Illini celebrate their homecoming day in one of the biggest intersectional clashes in the country.

Four conflicts were on the program today. Ashland was to invade the Heidelberg campus, Mt. Union was to storm Muskingum at New Concord, Adrian was to meet John Carroll and the Praying Colonels from Centre, of Kentucky, were to tackle Xavier at Cincinnati.

Offhand, Heidelberg appeared the favorite over Ashland, the Mounts might upset Muskingum and John Carroll should roll up a victory but the Centre-Xavier match was in the nature of an issue that won't be decided until the last whistle.

Ohio Conference tilts tomorrow included:

Wooster at Case, Kent State at Bowling Green, Denison at Oberlin, Hiram at Ohio Northern, Marietta at Capital, Wittenberg at Otterbein.

There were many who predicted that the winner of the mythical crown of the conference would emerge from the Wooster-Case clash. The two teams were hailed as the strongest in the loop and here the law of elimination was to exact its toll. Even a tie might damage the ultimate standings of the two teams.

ALL TESTS EVEN

One thing became particularly noticeable. The schedule found the college squads more evenly matched than they have been at any time this season.

Baldwin Wallace, one of the most formidable Ohio conference teams, scheduled Bluffton for its Saturday afternoon's play.

For the first time, too, the invasion of Ohio by distant schools became increasingly apparent. The schedule showed:

Vanderbilt at Cincinnati, Hanover at Miami, Georgetown at Ohio U., Louisville at Toledo.

Louisville, it was recalled, was the Tennessee team that Ohio State trounced 20 to 0 last year.

Louisville hails from Kentucky and it tasted blood for the first time in three years in its final game last season, marking its sole win during that period. Hanover and Georgetown are better known to Ohio fandom.

Other teams of the state crossed the boundary lines. They were: Dayton vs. De Paul at Chicago, Kenyon at Rochester, Western Reserve at Buffalo, Alfred Holbrook at Thiel, Defiance at Earlham.

Ohio Wesleyan vs. Marshall at Huntington.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

WHITE IS CAPTAIN

Coach George Gauthier, Ohio Wesleyan's generalissimo, has announced that Howard White, son of T. W. White, S. Court-st., will be captain of the Bishop grid outfit when it takes the field Saturday afternoon against the Marshall college outfit in Huntington, W. Va. A captain is selected for each game. The contest is the first Buckeye conference fray for both schools—Wesleyan faces the task of stopping John Zintini, gazelle-running Italian, while Marshall must stop White and Turley, the latter a passing threat.

BENYON INJURED

Ohio's game at Champaign, Ill., tomorrow may develop into a passing battle with Stan Pincura, Frank Fisch and Tip Dye heaving them for the Buckeyes and Jack Benyon for the Zuppkeans. A report from the Illinois camp today had it that Benyon, quarterback and co-captain, has a strained shoulder muscle which is bothering him.

Points of firm healthy flesh instead of bare bony bones? New vision, vim and energy instead of tired listlessness? Steady, quiet nerves? That is what thousands of people are getting through the latest discovery, the Vitamins of Cod Liver Oil concentrated in little sugar-coated tablets without any of its fishy, heavy, rancid, McCloy's Cod Liver Oil tablets, they're called "Cod Liver Oil in Tablets," and they simply work wonders. A little box of 3 tablets, only 20¢ each, will give you a young, healthy, alert, and well-planned life, in just one month. A young mother who could not eat or sleep after baby came got all her health back and gained 15 lbs. in less than a month.

You simply must try McCloy's at once. Remember if you don't gain at least 8 lbs. of firm healthy flesh in a month, your money back. Demand and get McCloy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Tablets. This is approved by Great International Institute, before any substitute is listed on the official McCloy's—there are none better.

ing at his palatial home here. He has not been seen at Berry Stoll's residence since the kidnaping.

AREAS SEARCHED

Scores of rumors that suspicious looking motorists had been seen were tracked down in all sections of the state. The latest came from Smiths Grove, Ky., 100 miles south of here. Four federal and two local police officers rushed there shortly after midnight. Minute search was continued also in the vicinity of Lake Louisville, 15 miles east of here.

Berry Stoll and his brothers, one of whom is reported to have been threatened with harm in the ransom note, made it plain they are not interested in prosecution of the kidnaping, but only in the safe return of Mrs. Stoll.

"We plead for a message from Mrs. Stoll," a spokesman said last night.

Concern over her fate grew meanwhile as the hours passed. Presumably she was still without medical attention despite that she was ill with a cold and had a temperature of 103 shortly before she was made prisoner. Her captor furthermore dealt her two blows on the head, once cutting a deep gash in her forehead.

Federal investigators were in full charge of the hunt today, assisted by several hundred Louisville police and the state police force. They clamped a rigid censorship over all happenings but admitted very little progress has been made.

Indications a second note was being awaited were given when caretakers at the Stoll place were seen searching the premises closely late yesterday. Two private telephone wires also were laid into the house to facilitate contact with the captor.

HARRISBURG, Ky., Oct. 12. Militiamen joined the widespread hunt for kidnaped Mrs. Berry V. Stoll of Louisville today. 50 of them launching a thorough search along the shores of Herrington lake for trace of her.

Twenty-five Kentucky national guardsmen under Brig. Gen. Ellerbe W. Carter of Louisville, and 25 members of the active state militia under Capt. Storey Harlan of Danville made the search. They arrived quietly late yesterday.

Laughing Around the World

Where Their Paths Would Never Cross

By IRVIN S. COBB

IT IS recorded that up in Duluth an amateur pugilist was induced to fight a visiting professional. In the first round the nose of the local entry was mashed flat.

"How did I do?" said he to his chief second as he made his groggy way back to his corner.

"Immense, kid, immense! You're there!"

In the second round the amateur sustained a very black eye and a series of annoying and disconcerting punches in his tum-tum. The gong saved him, temporarily, from further punishment.

"Am I still O. K.?" he inquired anxiously of his backer.

"Are you?"—I'll say you are. Nothing like it ever seen in this town. The big stiff can't hurt you. Just keep right after him."

As the bell sounded for the conclusion of the third round, the amateur now hammered almost to a pulp, fell up against the ropes.

"Whut'll I do next?" he asked, between his puffed and swollen lips.

"Why, just stay right with him same as you've been doing. You've got him goin'."

"Have I?" said the tyro. "Well, then, pull these here gloves off and let him keep on goin'. I'm goin' myself—in the other direction."

Safety Pin Is Old

The safety pin originated thousands of years ago. Among the remains of the lake dwellers of central Europe have been found a great number of pins—some of bone, others of bronze. Many are quite elaborate, with ornamental heads, and others are merely fashioned. Some have double stems, and few have been found in form exactly like the modern safety pin.

The First Aid station of Pickaway-co Chapter, American Red Cross, was a valuable and much needed asset to the Pumpkin Show is the report of Carl C. Leist, chapter chairman.

The station was under the supervision of Mrs. Eleanor Wolley Bissell assisted by Misses Mary Butler, Elizabeth Cady, Mabel Young, registered nurses, and Agnes R. Butch, Secretary of Home Service. Thirty-nine persons were treated and a number of children were housed until claimed by relatives and friends. Other minor services were rendered.

First Aid as interpreted by the Red Cross is the practical application of the age-old habit of neighborliness. Accidental injuries have always been incurred by active people and doubtless will always happen, even with the safeguard provided by the Pumpkin Show committee and civil authorities. In addition to this permanent service there has been close affiliation between the Red Cross and various Federal Emergency Relief activities during the past year. Red Cross chapters gave information as to emergency set-ups and administration boys and war veterans were enrolled in Civilian Conservation Corps camps and in the ranks of Civil and Public Works forces. First aid was taught by the Red Cross on CWA and PWA projects and is now being taught in CCC camps to lessen accidental deaths and injuries.

Miss Isabelle Witbeck has returned to her home near London after spending a few days with Miss Louise Lockard near this city.

Watch Weight of Young Child

Authority Urges This Precaution as a Preventive of Malnutrition Which, If Neglected, May Menace the Child's Future Health

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

Dr. Copeland

ANEMIA is suspected in those children who are pale and thin and easily fatigued. In a good many cases an iron tonic is prescribed. But as a rule anemia is not the underlying cause. The real nature of the trouble can often be traced to a nutritional disturbance known as "malnutrition."

Malnutrition is a serious disturbance of infants and young children. It is not a disease in the true sense, but is a general term given a state of poor health. This may be the result of chronic infection, faulty diet, incorrect eating habits, poor sleeping habits, lack of rest, insufficient sunshine and fresh air, or a combination of all these negligences.

Malnutrition is more common than most persons realize. It attacks the country child as well as the city child and is found among the rich as well as the poor. Many chronic disorders of adult life are due to neglect of this disturbance in childhood. Malnutrition always be suspected in the child who does not eat well, sleep well or gain weight.

The young victim is pale, dull and listless. He has dark rings under his eyes, tires easily and does not care to play with other children. He is backward in growth, height, weight and physical development.

Food does not have much appeal and the child rarely finishes a meal. Every effort should be made to teach these unfortunate children good eating habits.

Diet Important

A daily rest period is often helpful. Preferably this should be taken in the middle of the day. If the child is extremely active it may be necessary to encourage two rest periods during the day.

A good plan is to weigh the child once a week. If there is no improvement in weight and health, it is imperative that every effort be made to determine the underlying cause. Before complete recovery can be expected, all physical defects must be corrected and local infections removed.

Special attention should be given the diet. This should include an adequate amount of milk, fruits, green vegetables, eggs, meat, cereals and bread. Never force a child to eat. Encourage him and if necessary offer a reward for good eating habits. It is a wise plan in every family to accustom children early in life to a variety of foods.

Allow the baby to learn the flavor and texture of different foods. Of course, it is advisable to start with a small amount and gradually increase it. Do not be discouraged if the young child spits out the first few mouthfuls of food that is new to him. This is common and should not be taken as a sign that the dislike is permanent.

"DEATH SONG"

by JOAN CLAYTON and MALCOLM LOGAN

SYNOPSIS

Seifert Vail, the most unpopular patient at exclusive Sherwood Forest Sanatorium, is murdered. Two wounds are found on the body; one apparently from a sharp weapon and the other, from a dull, rusty instrument. Dr. John Calvert and Mark Ruxton, who had been nursing Vail, agree the wounds could have been caused by a pair of scissors. Felipe, the maid, discovered the body when she went into Vail's room to turn off the phonograph. Vail, a former opera singer, private entrance over the death of his wife, had a habit of repeatedly playing the record "Waiting For You," sung by himself. Dr. Calvert claims Vail had been dead an hour before the phonograph started playing. Vail shared a cottage with William H. Simpson, Milton Cross and James Ruxton. Ruxton's nephew, Loren, and Dr. Calvert are rivals for the affections of Sue Faraday, Mark's nurse. Ruxton had changed rooms with Vail the day before the crime because the former was unable to stand the noise of the phonograph. A visitor he wanted to receive secretly. A letter the victim received from New York is missing. Sheriff Finn asks Felipe how she knew Vail had been murdered when he had been covered and the wounds were not visible. She appeared to be hiding something and next morning, disappears. Clandestine claims he saw a piece of paper under the clock on Felipe's table, but no trace can be found of it. Loren Ruxton claims he was out with Sue at the snapshot taken at Lakeside Cottage a little after two o'clock, yet Sue had not left the hospital until five minutes to three. Mark's theory regarding the note in Felipe's room is that Dr. Calvert, having gone there alone, must have seen the note but denied seeing it. Learning from the bellboy who delivered the note that it was printed, Mark exclaims, "That's bad!"

CHAPTER XVI

"Consider that combination of circumstances, sheriff," Mark said. His blue eyes were almost blazing with excitement, but his voice remained low and level. "Felipa received a note last night, written by someone who took pains to disguise his handwriting. Some time during the night she disappeared. She had been hiding something from you yesterday, which indicates that she knew or suspected the identity of the murderer and didn't want to reveal it. That note which she received must have been written by the person she suspected. If the author was being protected by her through friendship, doesn't it seem probable that he was attempting to arrange to see her secretly?"

Finn had risen to his feet. For once he forgot to pull his mustache. He looked actually frightened.

"What are you getting at?" he asked in a husky voice.

"Just this," said Mark. "Felipa may have run away, but there's another possible explanation of her disappearance. If she knew too much, she may have been murdered too."

I felt the hair at the back of my neck rising. Finn swallowed painfully.

"I keep thinking of that lake in back of the cottage," he said.

"If she started to run away, she probably went along that path beside it, through the woods," he looked solemnly at us. "Mr. Finn," he added, "I'd look along that path and around that lake very carefully, if I were you. If Felipe isn't found soon, I'd drag the lake."

Finn tried to laugh and failed miserably. "Heck, Mr. Billyver," he said, "the girl just ran away. Judas Priest, don't try to make things any worse than they are already!"

He walked to the door.

"After all, you're the sheriff," Mark said, "but I repeat, you'd better look around that lake."

"I ain't going to do any such thing!" Finn replied angrily. He pulled the door open with a vicious yank, and left us.

I stayed in Mark's room only a few minutes after Finn had left. Disturbed by the developments of the morning, confused by all the theories that had sprung from Mark's too fertile brain, I wanted to get away by myself and think. The murder of Seifert Vail had been bewildering enough yesterday, with half a dozen significant facts which seemed to bear no relation to each other. Now, with Felipe, Loren Ruxton and Dr. Calvert all under suspicion, it seemed a hopeless problem. I went to my room and walked up and down, smoking cigarettes, trying to find some order and relationship in that confusion, and failing.

Most disquieting of all was Mark's certainty that Felipe had been murdered, that her body was in that still, deep lake less than a hundred yards from the room in which Vail had been stabbed to death. My mind kept returning to it, and I could not persuade myself that it was all a product of Mark's melodramatic imagination. He had sensed the tragedy at Lakeside cottage when Vail's phonograph had stopped playing, and could not escape the fear that this other intuition of his was correct.

Without knowing what I hoped to accomplish, driven only by vague apprehensions, I left my room and entered the woods behind the sanatorium by a narrow path that led from the rear of the main building. In a few minutes I could see nothing but trees and thick underbrush on either side of me. I might have been miles from any habitation. It was very silent; not even a bird sang. Hurrying, I came suddenly upon the shore of the lake. Even with the sun high, the water near the shores was shadowed by dark firs and balsams. The patch of brightness where the sunlight gleamed on the center of the lake only made the rest of it appear more gloomy. I could feel a chill rising from the water as I continued around the southern end of the lake, the end nearest Lakeside Cottage. The woods were thinner here, and I could catch glimpses of the cottage through the trees.

When the path turned sharply north at the east end of the lake, I walked more slowly, my eyes on the ground. It was here that Felipe walked, if she went that way last night. I was examining the beaten earth so closely that, as the path took a turn, I almost ran into three men standing in the roadway—the sheriff, one of his deputies and Dr. Calvert.

"Hello," I said. "Nice morning, isn't it?"

The sheriff grunted. Calvert said, "Good morning, Mr. Fowler. Taking a walk?"

I nodded. It was difficult for me to look at the young doctor; I was afraid that I would betray my suspicions.

"Are we in your way, Mr. Fowler?" Finn asked.

"Oh, no. I was just walking around."

"Don't let us stop you," he said. "Look here, Mr. Finn," I answered, "you know perfectly well why I'm here, and I know why you're here. After all, it was Mark Hillyer who suggested looking along the path, and I'm only trying to help both of you."

The sheriff's face reddened. I noticed that the deputy looked quizzically at him, and I realized that he must have appropriated Mark's credit for it.

"There's too many amateur detectives around here," he said. "When I want your advice, or Mr. Hillyer's, I'll ask for it."

"Very well," I said. "Will you let me pass?"

The three men stepped silently aside and I walked by them. I was angry and humiliated, and I decided at that moment to have nothing further to do with the inquiry into Vail's murder. If Mark wanted to be a detective he could be; but I wouldn't be dragged into his plans any more.

A blue jay in the path in front of me shrieked suddenly and took wing. I started and one of my feet slipped. I glanced at the spot from which it had flown. At my feet were two large blue beads. I turned and ran back, calling, "Sheriff! Sheriff!"

"What is it?" Finn called, hurrying toward me.

"Felipa's beads!" I cried.

He was on the ground in a minute, picking up the beads in his thick fingers.

"How do you know they're hers?" he said.

"I suddenly remembered. I did not know they were Felipe's; the association had been automatic, because I had been looking for some trace of her. Dr. Calvert's tired voice behind me said:

"She had a necklace like that. I've seen it."

The sheriff turned, holding the beads in his cupped hand. He looked very grim.

"Listen, Simpson," he said to his deputy. "You go back to town, my car and get the grapple hook that's in my garage. Bring it here as fast as you can."

"You going to drag the lake?" Simpson asked incredulously.

"What do you think I'm going to do with a grapple hook? Comb my hair with it?"

"What path can't drag that lake. That lake ain't got no bottom—everybody knows that."

"You get that hook or I'll break your neck!" Finn roared.

"Okay, chief, okay," Simpson said placatingly. He backed away and the chief, turning abruptly, plunged through the brush and plunged toward the lake. The doctor and I, after a momentary hesitation, followed him. In a minute we stood at the edge of the lake, looking into the water at the dark rocky bottom which showed up sharply a few feet from shore. The sheriff continued to walk slowly along the shore, scrambling over rocks and roots of trees.

"Say, what's that?" he cried suddenly. He turned and caught Dr. Calvert's arm. The physician winced.

"No need to break my arm," he said, pulling away.

"Sorry, doc, but look down there!" I followed Finn's pointing arm. On a ledge five feet from shore, just before the rock dropped away, nothingness, was a dark, shaggy bundle.

"It looks—" Dr. Calvert did not finish the sentence. He looked at the sheriff with dismay in his eyes.

Finn began to run along the shore, panting and stumbling. A rowboat was pulled up on the bank and the sheriff and I followed him. He stopped there and came hurrying back with a long boat hook in his hand. The bundle moved slightly as he touched it with the pole. He twisted the pole until the hook in the end caught. Then he bent his back and lifted with all his strength. The dark mass came up slowly, and as it came out of the water, diminished in size. I realized then that the refraction of the light had magnified it, and I almost laughed with relief. Out of the water, it was no more than three feet long.

The sheriff deposited it on the bank and he and the doctor knelt and began to examine it. It appeared to be a khaki garment of some sort, bundled up and tied by the sleeves. Under the sheriff's hands it came apart. He gave a sharp exclamation as he unfolded it. The bundle was a pair of khaki overalls, and inside it was a pair of hedge shears. Where they had rested against the cloth, there was a dark sticky stain. Dr. Calvert's hand darted toward the shears. He picked them up and felt the edges of the blades.

"Mr. Finn," he said solemnly, "I believe you've found the weapon that Vail was killed with."

The Daily Miracle

TIME is the most valuable of all human possessions. It outranks love, for love is not permanent. It abides after friends are gone and wealth has vanished. Time is priceless because it is changeless. Of all other things one must say: This, too, shall pass away. Time is the only thing that never ceases to be.

The most precious thing in life is the 24 hours which are allotted to mankind each day. Time is the changeless possession. And the more time one has the wealthier one is. And in this, Youth is the wealthiest of all.

Time is the equal possession of mankind. Without time nothing is possible. With it, all things are. Rich man, poor man, beggar man and thief, all are equally blessed by the daily miracle.

Said Emerson, "Give me health, and a day, and I will make the pomp of emperors ridiculous."

Said Franklin, "If thou wouldst hold on life, save time, for time is the stuff that life is made of."

Arnold Bennett, in his brochure, "How to Live on 24 Hours Per Day," says: "You wake up in the morning and your purse is magically filled with 24 hours of the manufactured tissue of the universe of your life. Waste your infinitely precious commodity as much as you will, and the supply will never be exhausted from you. You cannot draw on the future. It is impossible to get into debt. You can only waste the passing moment."

What a singularly inept race we are to have invented the phrase, "killing time!" After all, that is the real race suicide problem in a nutshell.

College Income Drops

AMERICAN colleges and universities are feeling the pinch. Many students are financially unable to continue their studies at this time, tuitions and other fees are unpaid, endowments and other gifts are falling off and invested funds are bringing in less income. Yale university's revenue will fall half a million dollars short of the normal expenditures this year, and that school is no exception.

This will compel abandonment of many expansion and building programs and the postponement of costly faculty and curriculum changes. In some institutions it means the students must endure for a few years more dormitory and other facilities no longer considered adequate and suitable. New stadiums and gymnasiums will be a rarity. Faculty members will continue underpaid.

The question arises whether the institutions of higher learning have not been a little too prosperous for the good of the students. Certainly university life can no longer be called the simple or ascetic life once thought so conducive to scholarship. It has little in common with the monastic life led by the scholars of old. Plain living is said to make strong men. It places a premium on fortitude and emphasizes the lesson that if case is desired, it must be won by hard work.

It would not be accurate to say that the average university student is living in the lap of luxury. Dormitories may be palaces externally and still encompass bare rooms and corridors cold and unadorned. In fact the average student is content with a cell containing a cot, chair and table.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Construction of Grade Crossings to Replace CWA President Plan?

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt has under serious consideration a nationwide program for railroad grade-crossings as a 1934 substitute for last winter's CWA.

Cost of the vast project is tentatively estimated at $1,000,000,000. Seventy-five per cent of the money, it is figured, would go direct to the pocket of labor.

Besides the controlling factor of approaching reducing unemployment rolls, the grade-crossing program appeals to the President for several other reasons:

First, he feels that the widespread installation of such safeguards have long been urgently needed in American railroad transportation.

Second, such a plan would eliminate the criticism raised against the CWA that no constructive work was accomplished.

Under the plan, as being considered by the President, the railroads would bear half the cost, with the Government lending the money.

In other words, the Government would put up the estimated $1,000,000,000 necessary to finance the grade-crossing project. But the railroads, over a term of years, would repay $500,000,000.

Unshaken

Texas' gentle, hard-working Senator Morris Sheppard, author of the late 18th Amendment, really believes that some day the United States will return to national prohibition.

In fact Sheppard always has a little anecdote on the tip of his tongue to drive home his conviction. This is his latest:

A teacher called on one of her pupils for a sentence containing the word "diadem."

"Pupils," she drank moonshine," the lad promptly rattled off, "die a damn sight quicker than those who don't."

Legion Convention

Administration leaders have been privately advised that the American Legion will do the following at its Miami convention:

1. Elect as National Commander, Frank N. Belgrano, Jr., San Francisco banker and Republican.

2. Six-step declaration in favor of immediate payment of the bonus.

While the inside word is one of assurance to the Administration regarding the final outcome on the bonus issue, it is admitted that there will be sharp fighting over the question on the convention.

Regains Top in Films

William Fox

A U. S. supreme court ruling has catapulted William Fox, above, former movie mogul back to the top of filmland, from which he was assertedly ousted by Wall Street financiers in 1931. The highest bench declared valid the patents of a German talkie system, which film companies had been using free for nine years. Fox owns 90 per cent of the stock in the device.

Bonusers will go into the battle with a pledged strength of 38 1-2 per cent of the convention vote. Fifteen state delegations have been directed to cast their ballot for some form of bonus-payment action.

These "departments" are Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Texas, Washington, and the District of Columbia.

Despite this imposing bloc of bonus votes, however, the masterminds of the vet organization—who behind the scenes really run its affairs—are convinced they can stop a formal endorsement.

They believe the majority of the rank and file can be persuaded that it is against their interest to take such a stand at this time, that it would antagonize public sentiment, endanger the benefits for disabled veterans regained during the last session of Congress.

White House Laugh

Best recent laugh in a White House press conference was the Newsmen: "Mr. President, are you taking any personal hand in the bombing of Japs in Arizona?"

New Conscience

Henry Morgenthau's Internal Revenue Collectors are growing too conscientious for the comfort of Congressmen. They are throwing out income tax returns in which Congressmen claim exemption for traveling expenses at the full rate of ten cents a mile.

Ten cents is the basis on which members are paid. But, the Collectors point out, ten cents is not the actual cost. It is about three times the actual cost. They will allow only the exact railroad fare to and from Washington plus one lower berth.

This is hard on Congressmen. For years they have deducted for members of the family, for clerks, for "Government business," for extra trips to and from the Capital. Traveling expenses of a majority of members run above their allowance, according to the sergeant-at-arms. Yet if the total allowance

Merry-Go-Round

Comptroller General McCarl's slashing of the initial budget for the President's tree belt from $15,000,000 to $1,000,000 has not halted the plans. The United States Forest Service, in charge of the work, has opened field headquarters at Lincoln, Neb., and started working. It anticipates appropriation of the necessary funds when Congress convenes. . . . Colonel Horatio B. MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

What happens when a small town boy wins fame too suddenly in the Big City is the basis for the serious heart troubles and the romance which accompanies the rousing comedy in "Strictly Dynamite." Rico-Radio Picture co-starring Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante and Lupe Velez, at the Cliftona Saturday.

Norman Foster plays a Midwest youth who comes to New York to write the great American poem. By a stroke of chance, he wins the role of gag-writer for Moxie Slaughter, famous radio comic, and then the trouble begins.

Success and Vera, Moxie's fiery air partner, go to his head. His clients and his wife sever their relations with him. Moxie saves the day when he recites one of his poetic masterpieces on the "Snuggly Huggly Corset Hour" in one of the most hilarious sequences ever filmed.

William Gargan, Marian Nixon, Eugene Pallette and Minna Gombell are also in the cast of "Strictly Dynamite." The Four Mills Brothers are heard in several brilliant vocalizations. Elliott Nugent directed from a scenario by Maurice Watkins and Ralph Spence.

AT THE GRAND

Nine different countries are represented in the picturization of "Embarrassing Moments" starring Chester Morris, at the Grand Theatre.

Alan Mowbray, playing opposite Marian, was born in London. Francisco Alonzo, brother of Gilbert Roland, comes from Madrid. George E. Stone hails from Poland. Charles Slumar, head cameraman, was born in Hungary. Fred Hueston, doing a bit, is from Canada. Velma Wayne, who does a Spanish dance, was born in Australia, and two extra girls are products of Berlin. Henry Arnetta, of course, comes from sunny Italy.

Morris himself, Marion Nixon and Walter Woolf, playing the leads in the picture, are all products of America, as are Lois January, John Wray, Virginia Sale, and many others.

And that's What YOU would Say, After Making the "Liquid Test" Described Here

DAVID H. WADSWORTH

Cold Springs, Kentucky, discovered the value of a liquid laxative about three years ago, and would never use violence again in relieving a constipated condition.

If, by making one little change, you could relieve a condition of sluggishness within 24 hours, and feel about 100% better—would you do it?

David Wadsworth did. You can do the same. All that is necessary is to get your bowels in the right condition. But you can't do that by doing them violence.

Doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives. They've seen the damage sometimes done by highly concentrated drugs in the form of pills or tablets! They know that a properly made liquid laxative containing senna (a natural laxative) does not do this harm. And they use a liquid laxative to relieve the bowels, because the dose can be easily regulated.

To Relieve Bowels

Constipated or sluggish bowels can never be corrected with violent purges. They can be safely relieved with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin without forming the laxative habit.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative made from fine herbs, pure pepsin, senna and cascara. It is most agreeable to take. The comfortable bowel movement from Syrup Pepsin is a joyful relief

This chic dress will be smart as an under-the-coat frock throughout the winter. The long panels, back and front give that slim, tall look to their wearer and any suggestion of severity of line is done away with by the prettily feminine collar, gathered softly about the throat. And the two tiny little bows at the neck. The sleeves, wide at the wrist, are fashionably comfortable, or if you prefer to have them puffed this can be done very simply by inserting elastic at the wrist. Have you seen the new corrugated crpe of an Indian rust shade? It would be the perfect choice for this modish pattern.

Pattern 9174 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 4 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric.

BANDITS FLEE SOUTH

Pretty Boy Floyd Positively Identified; Officers Say Baby Face Nelson Also Along as Three Men Battle Officers and Escape.

McINTYRE, Ia., Oct. 12. Federal officers and police of two states today pressed a grim man hunt for Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd and George "Baby Face" Nelson, foremost of the nation's desperadoes, who with a companion escaped in a running gun battle with officers near here.

Fleeing southward in a Ford V-8 bearing the Iowa license number 41-875, the trio of outlaws were last reported at Princeton, Mo., with Floyd at the wheel. Witnesses said the back of the automobile was punctured with bullets.

Missouri authorities promptly joined in the search, Floyd was believed to be heading for the Oklahoma bad lands where he made his name as a killer and bank robber extraordinary.

EXCHANGED VOLLEYS
Sheriff William Owen and State Agent A. G. Haight, with whom

the three desperadoes exchanged volleys of machine gun and pistol fire near here, said they were positive of Floyd's identity. They expressed belief that one of his companions was "Baby Face" Nelson, former machine gunner of the John Dillinger gang and America's Public Enemy No. 1.

Federal officers arrived here immediately after the shooting affray to take charge of the investigation and squads of armed deputy sheriffs and volunteers hunted highways, roads and farms for a trace of the gunmen, who had fled southward.

Informed by a neighboring farmer that Floyd was hiding out at a farm house a mile south of here Sheriff Owen and Officer Haight went to investigate. Floyd saw them approaching. Paying no attention to their commands, he halted the car, summoning two other men from a field where they were husking corn.

Floyd piloted the car out onto the road with the other two fugitives firing machine guns at the two officers, who ducked for cover. Still firing, the gunmen sped away on the highway.

The officers gave chase in their automobile. Two miles west of the farm, on rounding a curve, the sheriff and Haight found that the bandits had halted their car and turned around. In the face of pistol fire from the police car the gunmen roared past, raking the officers' car with machine gun fire and disappeared over the road they had come.

NONE INJURED
Although Haight's automobile was punctured by several bullets neither was injured.

HAUPTMANN'S LAWYER ASKS TO HALT CASE

To Attack Mountaineer Who Identified Alien; New Witness Alleged by State.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—With only three days remaining until Monday when a hearing will be held on Bruno Richard Hauptmann's plea to escape extradition to New Jersey to stand trial for the murder of the infant son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh his counsel, James A. Fawcett, was busy today marshalling every scrap of evidence favorable to the cause of the Bronx carpenter.

Fawcett has already announced that Hauptmann's defense will be an alibi and from one source today comes the report he will contend that on the night the Lindbergh infant was stolen from its crib in Hopewell, N. J., the somber-faced alien was in the Bronx—playing pinhole.

Fawcett has a large detail of private detectives working to bolster his defense and indications were that every so-called telling point in the prosecution's case against Hauptmann would be vigorously contested.

TO ASSAIL WITNESS
In New Jersey, for example, it is understood Fawcett is preparing to bias the props from under the state's star witness—the man on whose testimony it is believed the prosecution is depending to prove that Hauptmann was in

Hopewell in or about the time of the kidnapping.

This witness, it is said, is Millard Whited, Sourland mountain logger who told police that on two occasions during the month before the crime he saw a man resembling Hauptmann in the woods near the Lindbergh estate.

An affidavit in which Whited's credibility as a witness is assailed is now in the hands of the defense attorney, it was reported.

The man who signed the affidavit, it is stated, is Theodore Arnold, a Hopewell truckman, who declares he has known the mountaineer for more than 20 years.

Meanwhile a new figure entered the case in the person of Frank Rossiter of Maplewood, N. J., a theatrical booking agent with offices on Fifth Avenue, New York. He may appear with other state witnesses in the Bronx on Monday at the habeas corpus hearing.

Rossiter, it was learned, is prepared to testify that he talked with Hauptmann for approximately 10 minutes in a well-lighted place near Sourland mountain. Rossiter revealed that he had not known Hauptmann by name, but had identified him positively from pictures.

Admission that Rossiter would be one of the most important witnesses for the prosecution came from Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police.

Williams Is Veteran of NRA

An NRA three-letter man is S. Clay Williams, tobacco tycoon and newly appointed chairman of the reorganized NRA administrative board. Since 1933, when President Roosevelt selected the tall North Carolina lawyer to serve on the national labor board, Williams has been in the midst of the New Deal business and labor cooperative setups. For a long time he was spokesman of the tobacco industry code authority, which still is locking horns with the government over a final approved draft. Afterward Williams served on the NRA advisory board, and then on the 13-man committee to study the shortening of workers' hours.
